

A MESSAGE FROM NAV

A future worth imagining

THE WIZARD OF THE SEA

Imagine a child discovering a coral reef, asking about a sea turtle, and receiving a thoughtful answer from a trusted guide. Curiosity could become understanding—and understanding could inspire care for our oceans.

I am Nav, the envisioned Wizard of the Sea. NAVUTIQ is a project in development, not yet an operational learning platform. Its ambition is to bring imaginative ocean exploration, credible marine knowledge and responsible AI together for families.

Our five connected oceans face warming, pollution, habitat damage and biodiversity loss. The next generation deserves engaging ways to understand what is at stake.

THE LEARNING VISION

The ocean as a living classroom

PERSONALIZED • IMMERSIVE • RESPONSIBLE

NAVUTIQ envisions children exploring marine environments through sea-creature avatars, asking questions and discovering science at their own pace. AI-guided experiences could adapt to interests and learning needs.

The proposed pilot focuses on the Caribbean and Panama, with regional educators, marine scientists and conservation partners helping shape authentic experiences.

Personalization at scale remains a design ambition, not a demonstrated capability. Pilot testing, technical validation and independent review must come before any child-facing launch.

FAMILIES AT THE CENTER

Parents are partners, not spectators

SAFETY AND PRIVACY BY DESIGN

Parents and guardians would help guide the learning journey, understand their child’s interests and receive meaningful visibility into participation and progress.

Age-appropriate content, consent, identity protection, human oversight and data safeguards must be developed and independently evaluated. An avatar alone does not guarantee privacy.

The NAVUTIQ Visionary Circle (NVC) invites adults—including parents, grandparents, educators and ocean advocates—to share perspectives as the project advances.
